General Comment

I am writing to convey my deep concern with an aspect of this proposed rule. In particular, I DO NOT want to remove the ability for individual investors to perform option trades in an IRA. If one takes the time to learn proper options trading through careful position sizing on less volatile blue chip stocks, one can actually reduce risk rather than increase it. I have personally sold option premium with much success and would be extremely disappointed if this method of trading was removed due to this rule.
